Keep Your Own Record

Two pages. A blank observation worksheet; no new canonical documents or events.

SPOILER-LIGHT / BLANK READER TOOL. Use while reading or rereading. Inspired by the clerk's comparison of notices and minutes; not a recovered document from the shelter, a new bulletin, or real emergency guidance.

Complete one entry at a time. Copy only the words you need from your own book. Keep an observation distinct from an inference. A blank field is a valid result.

Reading entry

Chapter and scene:

Source or speaker:

Exact words I am comparing:

Earlier wording or situation:

What changed, in my own words:

Who is affected, and what does the scene actually show?

What remains uncertain?

Continue the same entry

My interpretation of the change:

What the text establishes:

What I cannot establish from this scene:

An alternative reading worth testing:

Chapter or passage to revisit:

Discussion check

Can I identify who said or recorded something without claiming to know who caused it?

Have I treated a character's explanation as an explanation, or quietly promoted it into fact?

Has later information changed my reading of an earlier passage? Record the two chapter references rather than deleting the earlier reading.